Season's Greetings to the Liberal Turkeys

"Gatsby believed in the green light, the orgiastic future that year by year recedes before us. It eluded us then, but that's no matter – tomorrow we will run faster, stretch out our arms farther... And one fine morning...

So we beat on boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past."

F. Scott Fitzgerald,
The Great Gatsby

'Twas the Night Before Christmas
Twas the night before Christmas, it was a beaut

Not a Liberal was stirring, all afraid to wake Newt

Checking for closets in which to hide
For they know January will be one hell of a ride.

For it was in November a short month
before

The American people rose up and swore

Never again will we be taken in
By Chicken-lipped liars who want only to win.

Up in the White House there came such a clatter

Hillary came down to see what was the matter,

It was Chicken-Slick Willie who had grown so much fatter,
He had fallen down stairs with his
Burger King platter.

He was bingeing on fast food to settle
his nerves

He knew Congress would give what
he deserves

No one, him, his wife, or his daughter
Was going to be safe from the Whitewater slaughter.

While Chicken-Slick Willie was feeding his face

His leftist regime would go down in disgrace

His stomach could no longer be stuffed in his shirts

And Hilary had stopped him from chasing the skirts.

The next election will take Willie from power

He is no longer safe in his ivory tower
So knowing Chicken-Slick Willie will be taking flight,

Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night!

Thanks to all who contributed to the above poem, especially the Colorado Cowboy.

THE BEAK GOES ON !

NOVEMBER 9, 1994

THE FALL OF BERLIN WALL II

The Berlin Wall was erected during the Kennedy presidency, in 1961, and was torn down on November 9, 1989. The Second Berlin Wall was started in America three generations ago, over forty years. Berlin Wall II was the demagogic Liberal philosophy that had its origins in totalitarianism and Marxism, and promotes the idea that governments should control the thoughts and actions of citizens for the State. The very antithesis of our unique Bill of Rights.

The Liberal lapidoodles' Berlin Wall has begun to crash since the November 9, 1994 elections. There are a lot of

In light of the recent election the above quotation seemed apropos. It is both gentle and thoughtful, yet oracular.

It is appropriate that political and philosophical losers be treated in the kind and caring manner that they have treated the peasantry for over 40 years. Let us not dwell on the slanders, lies, and congenital nastiness perpetuated against the American people, and the heritage they hold dear, by those lapidoodles who have held the Bill of Rights hostage for the past four decades. We traditional Americans must now show Liberals that we can feel THEIR pain, and we care. Since the holiday season is upon us we need to start the changed political climate with compassion for those who now have to be productive in order to eat. In that light I offer the following little poem:

bricks left to crush, and it will be hard work, but the electorate has sent a clear message to the arrogant robber barons in the temple.

The message is grounded in our nation's history and is simple, even for career Liberals—

WE ARE AMERICANS -

STAY OUT OF OUR POCKETS,

LEAVE OUR FAMILIES ALONE,

LEAVE US ALONE UNTIL INSTRUCTED TO ACT,

ABIDE BY YOUR SOLEMN OATH TO PROTECT THE CONSTITUTION AND BILL OF RIGHTS !

Liberal Democrats have controlled this country for forty years through dominance of the legislative branch of government and the mainstream media. During this time they have tossed out pork like piggies at an unlimited trough. For anyone who needs recent visual proof they only have to look at the Prince of Pork, Ted Kennedy, during the elections. (That boy be bloated! Soooooeee!)

The average American now realizes that we have traded away the heritage earned in blood by our ancestors for the sake of the social dabblers who have wished to destroy our very souls through giveaway programs hidden under the auspices of "caring" and "equality". We have been suckered, taken in.

Thus, Berlin Wall II.

It is going to be interesting to review what happened, and why, and perhaps provide a little guidance to our leaders for their future reference. The lessons they have been given at the polls are far better than the lessons that could have been provided through massive unrest by the middle class. Let us hope they learn these lessons regardless of which political party they belong to.

First, let us review the highlights of the past election -

- In my home state of Washington we had the Speaker of the House, Tom Foley, defeated by a first-time campaigner, George Nethercutt. Mr. Foley was the first sitting Speaker since the Civil War to lose an election. He resides in an Eastern Washington district that is conservative and rural, and was able to maintain his power-base through ample applications of pork. Pork was his campaign theme - here piggy piggy. He lost due to two simple reasons - 1) he sued the people who elected him over term limitations imposed by the voters in 1992 and 2) he was strongly for the Brady Bill and the "Crime" Bill. In fact, during the House vote on the Crime Bill he held open the vote for a full seven minutes, after time limits had officially expired, in order for Democrats to twist arms to get representatives to change their votes. Had he not so arrogantly and personally manipulated this vote he may have squeaked by and been re-elected. He tried pork barrel politics on the Bill of Rights. It did not work. There was a massive grass-roots effort by gun-owners that helped defeat this epitome of Lying Liberal arrogance.

Bye bye, Tom, and good riddance!

- Also in Washington we had a couple of other interesting elections. From out of nowhere and on the strength of an eight week write-in vote, we had Linda Smith defeat Jolene Unsoeld. We also had Ron Sims run for Senator. This guy is great. He was asked what he thought of the flat tax and replied he would vote for it if we had a 100% inheritance tax. So income could be redistributed. Guess he will have to become an economist as he lost in a landslide.

Then there was "conservative" Mike Kreidler. Mikey, an optometrist, was called to active duty during Desert Storm and had to do eye examinations at Ft. Lewis, 15 miles from his home. This did not prevent the warrior from appearing in ads, with an AR15 in tow, touting his status as a "veteran" of the Kuwaiti war. He also voted for the Crime Bill and was proud that he helped get those nasty AR15's off the street. His foresight was lacking, however, as he also went down along with the other sound-bite liars that have inhabited the Beltway.

The upshot in my state, where we have the Yasser Arafat look-alike Mike Lowry as Governor, was that we now have 7 Republicans and 2 Democrats in the House of Representatives. This is in spite of the Clinton visits. Every Democrat except Foley rushed to be seen with the Boy and it cost them the whole state.

HEE HEE GUFFAW GUFFAW. Oops, enough of that. We have to feel their pain and care!

- In Massachussets we had the reelection of the Doctor of Diving, Ted Kennedy. He was running against Mr. Romney, a Mormon. Kennedy, whose brother was the first Roman Catholic elected to the presidency, promptly made a big issue about Mr. Romney's faith. How bizarre - this porky Liberal, who has never had to work for a living in his life, made an issue out of a person's religion and the fact Mr. Romney actually EARNED his millions. I suppose Teddie thinks a leader is only someone who goes through life on two fifths a day and a woman in each pocket. Personally I don't think Teddy is going to be playing much touch football or doing much diving in the future. This guy is a pasty-faced lard barrel who better get his touchy-feely act together, or he will not physically make it through his next term. We need you Ted! We need a reminder of the Liberal dinosaurs who have done nothing for the middle class producers in this country except tax them to death for causes that they have never had to contend with at a personal level.

- Black conservatives nation-wide showed the courage to run against the failed Liberal policies that have emasculated and enslaved their communities. J.C. Watts became the first black congressman from Oklahoma and was elected by a predominantly white district. This is, in and of itself, no groundbreaking precedent as there have been many such cases nationwide; however, this election is notable because he is a conservative Republican. There were 22 black Republican candidates for the U.S. House and 8 of them, excluding the Watts race, won 40% or more of the vote. This is significant. Why, you ask? Here is why.

It has been largely forgotten in the past 40 years that the black community at one time was basically church-going, hard-working, independent, and self-reliant. Most of the black families I knew as a military brat were proud and forward looking. Yes, then as at any other time, there was a feeling of racism and exclusion among this community, but there was also cohesion and hope.

The failed Liberal policies of the past 40 years, especially as regards welfare, has created a black community that has lost the dignity and pride of the past. These policies have done the same to many other ethnic and racial communities in America. The evidence is in the schools that do not educate but "dumb down" the standards; the proliferation of people who feel government not only should provide opportunity for economic growth, but actually supply the growth without the recipient being required to pay for it; the excuses we hear for every individual act against society and family; and the demagogic bureaucracy that stifles individual initiative and freedom.

It has been the "caring" Jesse Jacksons, Bill Clintons' Ted Kennedys, and other misguided and self-centered wannabe kings and queens who have destroyed hope, and fostered dependence. The tide is turning and the most hopeful sign is recognition within the black community that they have also been duped by the Professional Purveyors of Poverty. It is time for this community to turn to and learn from those who have paid the personal price for economic success, instead of letting them be torn apart by the liberal media. Primary examples are Colin Powell, Clarence Thomas, Thomas Sowell, Armstrong Williams, Booker T. Washington, and other conservatives who know that it is the individual, not government-mandated excuses, that helps communities.

- California had Huffington versus Feinstein, Wilson versus Brown, and Proposition 187. This place always has election fun.

Huffington spent some $28 MILLION of his own money in a losing effort against Mz. Feinstein. She never met a gun she ever liked, except her own, and panders to the normal Act Up knee-jerk Liberal bunch based in that pinkest of American cities, San Francisco. Huffington has maintained that if it wasn't for him spending all of his own money in California, the Democrats would have won more seats nationwide as they would not have had to spend so much money against Huffington. I guess this is some kind of New Age logic I really do not pretend to understand. Guess the question is, "Why would someone spend so much of his own money to be a U.S. Senator?"

Wilson used the old tried-and-true gambit centered on the specter of all those "potential Pancho Villas reclaiming California as Mexican territory" to defeat the female Moonbeam representative of the Brown family.

The really fun issue in this election was Proposition 187, which would cut off state services to support ILLEGAL aliens. These are people who are not here legally – as in people who are not Americans. My what a furor! Hee, hee. There were demonstrations in the streets of both Los Angeles and Mexico City. They even trashed a Mexican McDonald's! Wonder if they ever figured out they were hurting the Mexican citizen who owns the franchise and not that arched nemesis, McDonald's. It will go down in history as the great MacTaco war of 1994.

Even the Mexican government got into the act by warning that it would protect its citizens in foreign countries. Yeah? Maybe if Mexico had the same welfare benefits for its own citizens we would not have this inter-border squabble. Hell, they are just discovering a two-patty system! I mean two-party system! What a Crock!

There are two main points to be made about this furor. The first is that common sense would tell us that no country is under any obligation to supply services to illegal aliens, regardless of how good they are as lettuce-pickers and maids, and second, the Mexican government can stay the Hell out of our internal political process. Our Federal government and our judiciary have created a situation where we not only are unable to protect our own borders, but individual States also have to bear the cost of the inane judicial burdens placed on the citizens of those States, without compensation. We are going to be hearing a lot about this issue in the future. It might also be pointed out that the vote was 2 to 1 in favor of this proposition in a state where Anglos are a minority in most places. If American citizens truly want to work instead of being on welfare there will be jobs available by virtue of those jobs being performed by citizens, not illegals. Instant job creation.

- Marion Barry was re-elected as Mayor of Washington D.C., our very own third-world mini-Haiti. The crack capitol of the world...Ho-Hum, gimme some...Guess nobody is going to crack the whip there; nobody there even wants to whip that crack! Anyway, the mayor-elect has picked a boxing promoter to head his transition team. Rock Newman, who also manages the heavyweight fighter Riddick Bowe, financed a large get-out-the-vote drive for the Barry in which people were paid to register to vote in Washington, D.C. Mr. Barry said, "We are going to change the face of government." Yeah, and the new D.C. song is going to be "Let it Snow", too. The official drink, of course, will be Coke.

- The Polish Pillager from Chicago, Dan Rostenkowski, lost in his bid to retain his Congressional seat. Actually he lost his butt to an unknown by the name of Michael Patrick Flanagan, age 32. Wonder if he is Irish.

Mr. Rostenkowski was defeated by an unknown contracts attorney who was the subject of a Chicago radio's trivia question in October. In fact, Rosty didn't even campaign until the last two weeks before the election and, when asked, was not sure of his opponent's name. Real arrogant attitude for a guy under a 17-count federal fraud indictment. I am sure that Willy will have a job for him though ... maybe as our new Postmaster General.

• Down in the great State of Texas one of the Bush boys beat the Motorcycle Mama, Ann Richards. She ran a great campaign which basically relied on good-ol'-girl sarcasm towards Mr. Bush, whom she referred to as a shrub. Goodbye Ann. Just remember that some shrubs pee back.

There were many more startling election results too numerous to enumerate here. I will leave the analysis to our great Liberal news media which utterly failed in 90% of its pre-election predictions. There have been many journalists, pundits, commentators, and others who have been warning of the great anger felt by Americans in the past two years. As a further warning it might be added that this visceral anger is still out there. People are fed up with the direction this country has been going for the past 25 years.

In light of this I am going to give some advice to El Presidente. Some basic "do's and don'ts" in the hopes that he may finally get the message.

I guess an appropriate title would be:

'WHERE WILLY WENT WRONG AND BECAME A WANKER'

Dear Willy:

1. It is strongly advised that you learn to tell the truth about both your personal and public life.

For example, don't tell us, both verbally and in writing, that you promise a middle class tax cut, and then deny that you ever said it while passing the largest tax increase in history.

Another example is when you and Hillary rail against the "greed of the 80's" and then deny that you yourselves were not crooks during the same time period. I mean, come on guys...we all know you didn't make all that money in cattle futures and suck illegal payments out of Whitewater Development, and Madison Guarantee, just 'cause y'all are so smart. Jeez, Hillary, we know that the illegal retroactive tax increase back to January 1, 1993 was no accident since it is known that your sale of your law partnership interest was done the day before, and thus you were taxed at a lower rate. After all, who cares that you deduct the "value" of your used underwear on your tax returns as a charitable donation? That is what tax planning is for I suppose but, Willy, you really should not talk about more benefits for the elderly when you passed a tax law that makes Social Security income subject to income taxes. Retroactively.

Another example...come clean about the women, Willy. There are just too many people who know about this stuff and they are all talking so they don't have "accidents". Like so many have had in the past two years. All of which is going to become even more public next year anyway so just admit you sometimes have a problem with your pee-pee brain. OK?

2. Would you get rid of some more of the Arkansas yo-yo's you have around you? I mean, just look at the Surgeon General, Joycelyn Elders! This is a woman whose primary goal in life is to corner the world rights to condom factories. She talks like she has been using some of her son's drugs. After his conviction on dealing drugs this year she said, "I really don't think he did anything wrong." Sure glad she is in charge of the nation's health. Her department ought to be renamed to the Office of "If It Feels Good, Do It".

Update: As this went to press Elders is gone—guess Willy has already learned how to be a wanker and doesn't need her anymore.

By the way, "get rid of" means to fire them, not fire ON them. Let's face it, there have been way too many "accidents" and "suicides" that have had tongues a'wagging. Cool it, man! On top of all the others there was the guy who testified against Jocelyn's son who supposedly shot himself with a shotgun and, recently, the guy who taped the yo-yo shooting at your White House and then went home to Guatemala, and died the very next day of some undisclosed type of disease. Weird coincidences, eh? After all, you are going to have enough trouble starting in January when the Foster suicide investigation is re-opened. You sure don't need any more of these crazy coincidences floating around!

You also might want to think about replacing Warren Christopher while he is still standing and breathing at the same time. Maybe give 'ol Tom Foley a chance to be a diplomat. Hell, he couldn't be any worse. While we are on the subject...I realize it has been real difficult to keep some of your friends around you what with all the scandals, hearings, talk of lying to Congress, etc., so you may want to think about finding some non-politically correct professionals for your staff. You know the ones I mean. They are the people who are interested in the fate of the country as opposed to those who only live from poll to poll for guidance on how to stay elected. A lot of them even remember how to tell the truth!

3. Please DO develop some type of Foreign Policy based on the protection of this country's interests. Maybe you can even develop a little style. It was real embarrassing to watch you jumping up and down between Rabin and King Hussein in Israel just so you could get your picture taken. I mean, we have seen enough of you what with all the jogging, saxophone playing, and jowls munching on burgers. A little command presence doesn't hurt! Sometimes it's the clothes that make the man and a lot of people are feeling that this "emperor has no clothes."

Back to foreign policy...We all know that we are dumb and don't know much but it would be nice if you didn't keep creating all these false crises like Haiti just to help out in the latest elections. Look what good it did you! The deal with North Korea did not seem to be all that neat either. We are going to give them diplomatic recognition, fuel oil and plants, and $4 BILLION worth of nuclear power plants in exchange for them getting rid of their nuclear weapon capability sometime in the next 10 years. Forgive some of us if we seem skeptical. We are going to make them economically and militarily secure and then, sometime in the future, they are going to give up the nuclear wild-card? Somehow that seems a tad bit optimistic considering the history of North Korea's leaders. Doesn't it? You also might quit treating our armed forces like peace-keepers subject to the whims of the Black Congressional Caucus and Boutros Ghali. Since we are still a sovereign nation, for now, and it is Americans who pay for American armed forces, maybe they should be under the command of Americans, not the United Nations. If the UN wants a New World Order, let them pay for it, not us. I realize the concept of service to your country of birth is a strange one, but try anyway. After all it is not like you are some kind of illegal alien or something. You even speak English!

4. You really made a mistake in turning over so much power to Hillary. She has gotten you in a lot of trouble. We know it was Hillary who persuaded you to try to cram the "diverse" lifestyles down all of our throats, and make all of those appointments of gays and lesbians to the White House staff and Cabinet positions but, Jeeze, it looks like they are acquiring favored status just so you can get votes. I hate to be the bearer of bad tidings but the average American, over 95% of them, are not simpering lapidoodles. They really do not appreciate having the gay lifestyle shoved down their craw nor do they appreciate members of your administration making it OK, indeed mandatory, that our children be exposed to them. Guys, get this. We are not dumb and know there are perversions in human lifestyles, but keep it private for crying out loud!

Now, speaking of your dear wife...Guess what, we NEVER elected her! Our Constitution does not provide for a "co-President" or "two for the price of one". Nice sales technique but we simply cannot afford two of you. So when she tries to set up a Socialist health care plan to take over 1/7th of our economy, and does it in secret while spending $20 MILLION, we do not like it. Nosiree! We realize that a lot of you people who have fed at the taxpayer's trough are not used to asking where money comes from and are not used to any spending restraints, but let's have just a little common sense. After all the Liberal Fawns in the national media have all told us how smart and neat she is, but us dumb peasants shore ain't seen any of it yet. All we have seen is her trying to make our country into a Socialist paradise and not being held accountable for it. We know she has got you

If the UN wants a New World Order, let them pay for it...

by the short hairs if she was to ever write a truthful biography but it is you we elected, not her..

I hope this discourse has been helpful to you. I will continue with all the assistance you may need and even help out the Republicans a bit. You accepted "some blame" for the past election results and, hopefully, you will get the message that was sent by voters. It was sad to watch all these Democrats refuse to invite you to help them out. Just think what would have happened if you had shown up...The Congress would have been 100% Republican and that's no fun!

A FEW WORDS TO REPUBLICANS...

Ladies and gents, you were elected to serve the will of the People as provided for by the Bill of Rights and the Constitution. You were elected by both conservatives and liberals who are productive, moderate, middle-class people who truly love this unique country. A country that has established, in blood, that Government is subject to the collective will of INDIVIDUALS, not the other way around.

I applaud you for your written promises and I speak for all of us...KEEP YOUR PROMISES. You were not elected to debate matters that the Government has no legitimate Constitutional reason to act on.

Examples are school prayer, abortion, or other matters that are none of the Government's damned business. You were also not elected to play touchy-feely with lame ducks. They have been sent slipping and sliding down their own crappy path. Some of us realize that your cooperation on the GATT treaty may have been inspired by a feeling it would be good for Americans, first. I hope so and only time will tell. There are many of us, however, who think such a treaty should not have been voted on by the lame-duck Congress, but, after careful study and debate, by those taking power in January. We can only hope that all of those who voted for this treaty actually took the time to read, but forgive those of us who may be skeptical.

You were elected to turn around the abuses perpetuated by self-centered career politicians who have lost touch with the average American. Business as usual is not going to cut it anymore. THAT is the message of the November election.

With that in mind, may all of you HAVE A GREAT HOLIDAY SEASON!

I personally thank all of you who have supported these feeble endeavors and keep those cards and letters coming – not to mention subscriptions!
